as a renowned institution of higher learning in Asia. It was established in 1985, with its first intake of just over 100 students, and the number continues to grow over the years.

"I was made to understand that UBD is guided by five core values, namely people, expertise, aptitude, relevance and leadership. I see that such goals are commendable, as character is a measure of status or quality. Those with outstanding character normally possess great quality. This is the quality that we want UBD to produce in a generation of great quality".

His Majesty added, "The quality that we seek is not fame, but possess values such as faith, obedience, knowledge, trust and justice. This is our culture, we should strive to avoid deferring to or imitating other cultures, although the culture comes from places with great names. Having a great name alone is insignificant, if the inner elements are defective. I would like UBD to become the foundation for protecting the identity, of the Malay Islamic Monarchy (MIB)".

"MIB is also accommodating towards the rest of the world, as we respect those who respect us. This is where UBD should play its role in promoting the MIB through its character and lifestyle, including social and academic activities such as community activities, talks, writings, studies, and so on," said His Majesty.

"These are among the significant challenges that we face, especially in this era, where external influences that surround us persistently. All this requires caution from all parties, especially those who are in charge of education," said His Majesty.

Achieve target to meet self-sufficiency

BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, February 26 – “In a strategic plan, the Ministry of Primary Resources and Tourism has targeted an increase of primary resources’ gross product from $511 million in 2015 to $1.8 billion by 2020, an average increase of 28.8 per cent per annum. Meanwhile, for the tourism sector, the ministry aims to increase the number of tourist arrivals from 218,000 in 2015 to 450,000 in 2020, an average increase of 5.9 per cent per annum.”

His Majesty Sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkiah Mu'izzaddin Waddaulah ibni Al-Marhum Sultan Haji Omar 'Ali Saifuddien Sa'adul Khairi Waddien, Sultan and Yang Di-Pertuan of Brunei Darussalam stated the matter in a titah (royal speech) during an unscheduled visit to the Ministry of Primary Resources and Tourism (MPRT).

In this regard, His Majesty the Sultan and Yang Di-Pertuan of Brunei Darussalam emphasised that target must be provided with data, especially in the agricultural and fisheries sector. Similarly, the existence of job opportunities in these sectors are unknown, apart from citing figures on targeted job opportunities.

“For instance, we managed to attain 5 per cent of self-sufficiency for rice production in 2017, while in 2020, the ministry is targeting rice production to 11 per cent. When the target is set at 11 per cent, then all attention must be centred on that figure. We should not reminisce the 5 per cent figure but look forward to achieving the 11 per cent target. This is how people climb to reach their desired target,” said His Majesty.

His Majesty also advised all MPRT personnel not to be anxious with motivational terms, such as the self-sufficient term, which serves the purpose of meeting one's needs. Its usage should be used continuously for as long as the objective of self-sufficiency has not been achieved.

In implementing the ministry's vision and mission, His Majesty stressed that leadership is the pillar, and therefore, leadership should be upright and cannot be bent. In handling requests or complaints, a leader should not be provincial or family-centred, but to manage it equitably, by following the specified rules.

“Leaders need to evaluate before making any decisions. All matters must be considered in-depth,” said His Majesty.

His Majesty in a titah also said that the weakness or defect is when a leader does not trust his subordinates or unwilling to accept the views of other people even though the suggestion is good. Such an attitude goes against the concept of the convention.

For instance, the desire to privatise agricultural areas is viewed as beneficial and capable of boosting production. However, deciding on who should manage it requires deep consideration.

“The ministry should not assume wealth is the only factor eligible for a project to be awarded to the private sector. If this happens, then all the projects will be monopolised by the affluent or big companies. Privatisation is not intended to diminish the structure of government, nor should the government be merely content with the achievements or high output of the private sector, while the government is a spectator. This is important for policymakers and policy-holders to understand,” His Majesty said.

His Majesty also highlighted on the current major challenge that is the large-scale commercial paddy planting project at Kandol, Belait District, with an allocation of 500 hectares of land. Therefore, His Majesty hoped the relevant agencies for the project to be engaged in determining its success, and ensure that it functions appropriately and be prepared to tackle problems that arise.

His Majesty added, we should continue to study and carry out research on sites, rivers, fields and the risk of using pesticides. Apart from that, they should be ready for the second phase of the project, which will be more challenging, as the area is hilly and not conducive for excavation and levelling work. This is also the right time to see the effective role of the appointed consultant.

In a titah, His Majesty expressed frustration at the failure to meet the goals for Bio-Innovation Corridor in Tungku, which cost over $20 million. Despite efforts to make it into an agricultural site, the response is not favourable. However, it has been offered to domestic and foreign investors to undertake the cultivation of fruits and vegetables.

His Majesty emphasised that the matter should not be taken lightly, which is sure to happen because of the planner's weakness and inefficiency.

His Majesty also touched on the issues of agriculture where products and prices from abroad are far cheaper compared to the local. As a result, foreign produce has better sales and is affecting local farmers and cultivators.

“Market plots are also an issue, which the locals lease some of the stalls to foreigners, such as Pasar Tani Selayun, Mukim Sengkurong 'B', where foreign tenants are monopolising the stalls. Unfortunately, they are raising and lowering the products' prices without being monitored or controlled by the relevant parties,” His Majesty further stated that the weaknesses and inefficiencies also occur in current regulatory matters.

His Majesty further expressed concern about the regulation of goods such as fruits, vegetables, and fish before being sold to the public, which means ensuring that these goods are free from harmful insecticides and sprayed excessively. The same applies to fish brought from abroad.

“We are aware that the agricultural sector still faces several challenges and problems. Among those challenges is how to instil interest in farming among farmers and how to increase the number of people to venture into this field. Currently, the interest and numbers of farmers are still low. Some farmers are retirees who do not work full-time, but to fill their free time”.

In this regard, His Majesty is doubtful whether the growth and progress of the agricultural sector can flourish and urged to make changes if the situation persists.

In regards to the fisheries, His Majesty further stated that the country is not able to meet the nation's requirement and is still heavily dependent on the production of fish from neighbouring countries.

“Local entrepreneurs are unstable. When being observed at the Fish Landing Complex, Fisheries Department in Serasa, most of the fishing trawlers are monopolised by locals. However, their production is incapable of competing with fish brought in from other countries”.

His Majesty stressed the relevant agencies not to overlook the issue of vessels being sub-contracted to foreigners without any regulation. It would not be surprising if their catch were still being sold to restaurants in the country.

Marine resources are among the industry that is capable of boosting the nation's revenue. However, initiating it requires a workforce, asset and expertise. Towards this, the industry needs innovative and organised planning. It is high time for the country to possess great supremacy of entrepreneurship.

His Majesty also touched on the importance of forest resources as Brunei Darussalam is renowned for its high-quality agarwood (kayu gaharu).

“However, the monitoring and regulation are questionable as illegal logging activities at the border continue to be heard. If the situation continues, our assets will be greatly diminished,” said His Majesty.

In the titah, His Majesty stated his desire to make Brunei Darussalam into an attractive tourist destination. In the meantime, Brunei Darussalam still lacks of exciting places and facilities, but this can be overcome gradually through future development plans.

“What is important now is to preserve and maintain existing facilities, and make them attractive and clean instead of neglecting them. There are grievances that many tourist attractions are not properly maintained, and some are abandoned. If this is true, then it is an embarrassment,” said His Majesty.
